ELECTION TO BE HELD TO RAISE FUNDS FOR LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL

Tomorrow, April 14, a special election will be held throughout Jefferson Union High School District for the purpose of raising funds with which to construct a shop building for the auto mechanics department of the high school. This department at present occupies the basement of the high school building.

Both the Health and Fire Departments of the city have notified the Board of Education that this condition should be remedied, and it is to make this possible that the board has called the election. Besides, the auto mechanics department has grown so rapidly that additional space is badly needed. More pupils apply than can be admitted. It is estimated that the new building will cost $25,000.

The district will be divided into three precincts. In Visitacion elementary school district, Precinct No. 1, the election will be held in the Visitacion elementary school house; in No. 2, Jefferson elementary school district, the election will be held at the high school building; and in No. 3, San Pedro and Rockaway elementary school districts, the election will be held at San Pedro elementary school house, situated at Salada Beach.

The entire student body and faculty join the Board of Education in requesting that the voters go to the polls on Saturday and vote "YES" on this proposition.

The polls will be open from 1 P. M. until 6 P. M.

BOY BADLY INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY CAR

Jack Rogers, 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rogers, of San Diego avenue, was badly injured last Saturday, as the result of being struck by an automobile while crossing Junipero Serra boulevard. Jack had been out picking flowers with his brother and sister-in-law, and in crossing the boulevard failed to see a machine coming as he passed in back of one going in the opposite direction. Witnesses to the accident say the bay was thrown a distance of fifty feet. He received a broken leg, his lower jaw was broken, and he was badly bruised all over his body. The injured boy is at St. Mary's hospital, and latest reports are that he is recovering from his injuries in a most satisfactory manner.

THE FAILURE OF SUCCESS WILL BE PASTOR'S SUBJECT

"The Failure of Success" will be the subject of the Sunday evening service, at 8 o'clock, at the Daly City Methodist church. Special music, under the direction of the music committee, will be provided. Prof. T. Eugene Goudey will play his usual high class music for the entire service.

Sunday morning the pastor's subject will be taken from S. D. Gorden's book, "Quiet Folks in Service."

Don't forget the Sunday school hour, 10 o'clock. We have classes for all ages, and invite you to attend.

The Friendly Indians will meet regularly on Thursday afternoons at 3:45, instead of Tuesday. All Friendly Indians please take notice.

Thirteen new members were received into the fellowship of the church Sunday morning and evening and several children were baptized. In six months time over twenty-five new members have been received into the fellowship of the church. The church was filled both morning and evening and a glorious Easter day was enjoyed by the congregations.

The Easter sunrise service was well attended and was a real inspiration to all.

ELLIOTT L. FISHER, Minister.

MEETING OF MERCHANTS

The executive board of the Daly City Merchants' Association met at the home of A. Vireno last Wednesday night at 8:15. Considerable business was transacted and a very enjoyable evening spent. It was decided that the next regular meeting will be held at the Daly City Hall on Wednesday evening, April 18, and it is hoped that every merchant and professional man will be present.

STATE OPENS SKYLINE BIDS

Bide have been opened on the Skyline boulevard and it is announced by the State Department of Public Works that a contract calling for immediate work on the important San Mateo county project will be awarded within the next fortnight. J. E. Knapp, Stockton contractor, submitted a low bid of $651,381.50 on grading and surfacing 13.8 miles of the Sky line route between La Honda road and Saratoga Gap.

PROPOSED WIDENING OF SAN JOSE AVENUE

At the meeting of the members of the City Council last Tuesday evening, being an adjourned meeting from Monday, on account of the election, all members were present except Councilman Bodien. Mayor H. H. Smith presided.

It was decided that the members of the City Council should meet with representatives from San Francisco on Monday, April 16, for the purpose of discussing plans for the widening of San Jose avenue. This move is deemed necessary because of the increase of traffic in this section.

Mayor H. H. Smith was delegated to attend the California Congress of Parent-Teachers' Associations at Burlingame on April 19.

A petition was presented by Mr. Cashion for permission to remodel and operate a fruit and grocery store in the basement of a store at 357 West Lake avenue. Action on the petition was deferred until the next meeting of the Council.

Interested property owners were present at the meeting in regard to proposed improvements in the block on Templeton avenue opposite Irvington street. It was decided to postpone action on this matter until the next meeting of the Council, when it will again be considered.

MANY PRESENT AT EASTER SERVICE

The Easter has come and gone, but it has left the sweet fragrance of love and good will in the hearts of all who came in touch with the Christ.

Our prayers service was all and more than we had hoped. The crowd was fine and the interest and reverence splendid. The address by Rev. Fisher was most helpful and appropriate.

At the Sunday schol hour at Grace Presbyterian church we had planned on breaking the record in attendance, which up to this time had been 204, and when the count was made by Mr. Jones and Mrs. McNair it was found we had 329. Then we sang "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow."

Three were baptized and Mr. and Mrs. Scheildager united with the church.

A very pleasing and appropriate program was given by the members of the school and Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Gatchell sang a duet which was appreciated.

At the evening service the contest in attendance was closed, and it was found that the side led by Miss Mildred Swan had won by about 70 points, and the pastor handed the prize to Mr. Jack Carnegie, the other leader, with the instruction to hand it over to the leader or winner, Miss Swan.

At the close of the service it would have been very fitting to have sung "When We Come to the End of a Perfect Day."

The service this Sabbath evening will be from the theme "Have We Followed a Delusion?" Special music is being prepared for this occasion.

We were very sorry to be disappointed last Sabbath evening, as Mr. Gifford Teal was taken with fever and could not sing for us as had been arranged. But we are glad to know that at this time he is much improved, and we hope to see him later.

CHAS. H. GATCHELL, Minister.

WORK PROGRESSING ON NEW BUILDING

Work is progressing on the new theatre building at the corner of Flournoy and Mission street. A busy crew of workmen are at work on this new structure, which will be one of the finest theatres on the Peninsula when completed. The contractors promise that the work will be carried on as rapidly as possible.

This new enterprise will mean a great deal to Daly City, and especially the section immediately adjacent the new building.

The new building near Knowles at Mission street is practically completed, making a pleasing addition to that section.

The building recently completed by George E. Archer, just across the street from his County Line Service Station, gives Mr. Archer considerable more floor space, which he has long needed, and which will be more than acceptable as soon as the new Fords begin to arrive.

CONSTITUTION EXAMINATION AT REDWOOD CITY, MAY 19

The San Mateo County Board of Education will conduct an examination of the United States Constitution on May 19 for those teachers desiring to take the same in order to complete their certification. The examination will be given at 9:30 a. m., in the Central school on Broadway, Redwood City.

Municipal Officers Are Again Chosen by Voters

The voters of Daly City, at the election held last Monday, turned out in goodly numbers, it being estimated that about 85 per cent of the voters cast their votes for the candidates of their choice.

From the time of the opening of the polls until they were closed, there was intense interest shown by the friends of the different candidates, who were kept busy advocating the merits of their favorites.

It was a friendly, though intense campaign, without any last minute sensations; an orderly conducted election, in which each citizen exercised his franchise as he believed for the best interests of Daly City.

When the ballots had been counted it was found that Councilmen A. J. Bodien and Henry Sundermann, City Clerk B. C. Ross and City Treasurer A. L. Stockton had been re-elected. These men will therefore enjoy another term of service to the people of Daly City.

The following table shows the vote cast in the six precincts of Daly City:

For Councilman—
A. J. Bodien	116	168	202	118	191	100	895
W. F. Hughes	24	103	67	65	79	38	376
Philip Ross	35	69	101	19	65	43	332
Frederick W. Winter	13	55	59	49	139	116	431
H. Sundermann	104	152	178	115	192	92	833
For City Clerk—
G. Gehringer	54	80	84	67	72	79	436
B. C. Ross	93	217	247	122	285	127	1091
For City Treasurer—
A. L. Stockton	129	230	242	143	271	146	1161

A. L. Stockton, who was unopposed as a candidate for re-election as City Treasurer, received the highest vote, 1,161 votes being cast in his favor.

Councilman A. J. Bodien received the highest number of votes for Councilman, 895 voting for his retention in office, while Councilman Henry Sundermann, with 833 votes, was second. Captain F. W. Winter was third in the race for Councilman, receiving 431 votes, while W. F. Hughes was given 376 votes and Philip Ross 332.

City Clerk B. C. Ross was second only to City Treasurer Stockton, receiving 1,091 votes. Mrs. Gertrude Gehringer, candidate for City Clerk, received 436 votes.

And now that the voters of Daly City have made their choice of representatives, we can all cheerfully abide by their decision, and all join hands and work for the best interests of Daly City. We may have our favorites for public office, but we can all agree that Daly City is "a good place to live," and it's getting better every day.

SUMMER CONCERTS AT HILLSBOROUGH

The Woodland Theatre, built by the Hillsborough school district, will again be the sylvian setting for the Sunday afternoon symphony concerts to be presented during the summer by the Philharmonic Society of San Mateo County.

Elaborate plans have been perfected for this third season which will be given for two months on Sunday afternoons, beginning June 24.

Three conductors of international fame and popularity have been engaged for the eight concerts to be given in the natural ampitheatre.

Albert Coates, the distinguished English conductor, who has been guest conductor of all the great orchestras of Europe, will open the series and conduct also the second one the week following.

Bernardino Molinari, conductor of the orchestra of the Augusteum in Rome, Italy, who made his first appearance in this country as guest conductor of the New York Philharmonic orchestra in New York City last January, will conduct three of the concerts during July.

The last three concerts of the season which will close Sunday, August 12, will be conducted by Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor of the Detroit symphony orchestra, who will be welcomed as an old friend by the Woodland Theatre audiences, as he conducted the final concerts of last summer.

The entire personnel of the San Francisco Symphony orchestra has been engaged for the summer concerts, thus assuring the artistic quality of the programs to be presented.

Native Daughters Visit Veterans

El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, has for some time taken an active interest in the welfare of our veterans at Palo Alto. On Sunday, April 1, Miss Florence McKendrick, chairman of the Parlor's welfare committee, gathered cigarettes, candies and magazines, donated by members of the Parlor, and with Mesdames Volkman, L. Wall, Mathais, Schade and Kelly, and Misses McKendrick, Mathais and Barron, journeyed to the base hospital and distributed these gifts to "our boys."

Co-operation in making this an outstanding success is asked of all parents and teachers.

The entry list of pets includes everything from aquariums and birds the ponies and horses. Handicraft classes include woodwork, bird houses, models of boats, aeroplanes, radios, electrical apparatus, etc. Under collections are listed stamps, coins, rocks, minerals, pressed flowers, seeds, woods, etc.

Of special interest to girls will be the school exhibits of domestic science according to school grade, beginning with the sixth grade up to and including the eighth grade.

MILK DRINKING ON INCREASE IN COUNTY

That milk drinking is becoming more popular in San Mateo county is indicated by an increase in the daily volume of milk distributed, which jumped from 3,572 gallons in April, 1927, to 4,272 gallons in April, 1928, as reported by the county milk inspector.

The nutritional value of good milk and its prime importance in the diet of all persons, growing children in particular, is now generally recognized, and through the influence of the press and educational workers in the schools, milk is becoming more and more to be appreciated by the entire population.

A surprise milk scoring contest just completed reveals that this county maintains the score of 94.4 per cent, figured on the volume basis. This score is one whole per cent higher that the previous contest held several months ago.

Judges officiating in the contest were H. E. Ball, market milk specialist of the Department of Agriculture, and J. J. Garland, county milk inspector.

The results of the contest are as follows:

Grade A Pasteurized milk, rated between 95 and 100 per cent—Dairy Delivery Co., Peoples' Dairy, Home Dairy, Witt's Dairy, San Carlos Creamery, Standard Milk Co. Redwood City plant), Palo Alto Dairy.

ENGINEERS REPORT ON PROPOSED COAST ROAD TO SANTA CRUZ

An engineering report on the new coast highway which is to link San Francisco and Santa Cruz and extend along the ocean shore of San Mateo county, already given tentative approval by a district board representing San Mateo, San Francisco and Santa Cruz counties, was filed with the San Mateo county board of supervisors at Redwood City last Monday.

Acts of the district board, approving San Mateo county's quota of $1,590,000 for the new road, which is to follow the route of the former Ocean Shore railroad through the county, are to be reviewed by the supervisors, District Attorney Franklin Swart and engineers some time prior to April 25, it was announced with the filing of the report. It is expected that the action of the district board will be approved by San Mateo county authorities and by Santa Cruz county.

There will be approximately 40 miles of detours from the route of the former railroad and a tunnel under Point San Pedro, according to the plans for the 73-mile highway, which is to cost $5,300,000, the report shows.

It must be approved within thirty days, the supervisors were told. San Mateo county is to be charged with 30 per cent of the cost of the road, Santa Cruz county is to pay 20 per cent, and the remainder of the cost is to be borne by San Francisco, under the plan approved by the district board in San Francisco last week.

Itemized costs by engineers' estimates are set down in the report as follows: Additional rights of way, $260,500; repairs to present roadways along the Ocean Shore property, $780,000; San Pedro Point tunnel and detours, $4,000,000; engineering costs, $259,600.

The highway is to have a width of 100 feet, with the exception of the tunnel, which will have a width of 30 feet, it is stated in the plans.

Members of the three counties highway board who voted tentative approval of the report are Chairman John W. Poole of the San Mateo county board, Supervisor Andrew Gallagher, San Francisco, and Supervisor George H. Rostrom, Santa Cruz.

COUNTY MAY RECEIVE $40,000 IN BACK TAXES

San Mateo county will receive an unexpected income of about $40,000 this year because of the check of old tax records just completed by C. E. Skidmore, state tax expert, according to J. J. Shields, county auditor.

Skidmore searched the records of every year since the incipiency of San Mateo county in 1856, and found that there are between 8,000 and 10,000 property owners in this county who owe back taxes. If these installments are not paid by June 1, according to Auditor Shields, the property involved will be sold at public auction.

Over a period of years the Bear Valley Gulch Company ran up a total of $5,000 in delinquet taxes, according to the records. An index to redemptions, which was begun on January 1, 1927, lists seventeen pages, with twenty-four separate items on each page, for the name of J. P. Ames during the year 1870. Most of this property is Arleta Park.

Over twenty-four pages in the index are devoted to the delinquencies during 1872 on the property of James Regan, et al. Most of this property is at Rockaway Beach.

Those connected with this check declare that there may be several court battles over the alleged delinquencies of 1872, because it is said that there was a mistake in the assessment made during that year.

DALY CITY SCHOOL HAS BAND OF MERCY

To Daly City goes the credit of having the first Band of Mercy organized in San Mateo county.

Mrs. O. L. Rehbein, Humane Education chairman of the Seventeenth district Parent-Teacher Association, was asked to talk to the children of the Crocker school in Daly City a short time ago on "Kindness to Animals." So much interest was shown by the children to learn about handling pets and other animals that not only one but six Bands of Mercy were established in the school, one in each room, with a total membership of 259.

Under the leadership of Mrs. J. S. Frary, Miss Aileen Suber, Miss Frances Almquist, Miss Velcata King, Miss E. A. Packwood and Miss Edna G. Johnson, these six clubs will meet monthly, at which time the program will consist of songs, animal stories, reports of kindnesses done, especially to animals and birds, etc.

Angel food cakes! easy to make

When grandmother made angel food cakes the recipes of her day were inaccurate. It took years to know her oven.

But today, when you accurately measure and mix ingredients, you believe your cakes should always be good.

They will be, unless you're guessing at the oven temperature which is the chief cause of rubbery angel food cakes. They must be baked at 325 degrees.

All the modern gas ranges have the Oven Temperature Control. It keeps the oven at exactly the temperature for which it is set. You place the angal food cake in the oven, set the Control for 325 degrees and leave the kitchen for an hour. The monotony of watching the baking vanishes. Meats, pies, and even a whole meal can also be baked with the same ease and freedom.

See the modern gas ranges with the Oven Temperature Control.

FORTY-FIVE STATES HAVE GASOLINE TAX

Forty-five of the forty-eight states of the Union have adopted the gasoline tax as the favored means of raising revenue for highway and other purposes.

This is announced by the division of motor vehicles as the result of a survey conducted by Major Louis LaPlace, head of the safety bureau.

Of the forty-five, LaPlace said, nineteen have a tax higher than the three cents per gallon paid by Californians.

Five charge five cents, one four and a half, twelve four cents and eleven two cents.

All of the states with the exception of thirteen charge personal property taxes in addition to fuel taxes and weight and registration fees.

"Everything considered," said Mr. LaPlace, "California is one of the cheapest states in the Union to motor in."

The states paying a five cent tax are Rhode Island, New Mexico, Kentucky, Florida, and Arkansas.

Vermont is the lone state with a tax of four and one-half cents, and Texas is the only one charging three and one-half cents.

The following states charge four cents: Alabama, Arizona, Georgia, Idaho, Maine, Maryland, Mississippi, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Carolina, South Carolina and Washington.

The fifteen states with a three cent tax are: California, Colorado, Delaware, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Montana, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

The eleven states having a two cent tax are Connecticut, Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota, Missouri, New Jersey, Nebraska, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia.

Massachusetts, New York and Illinois are still without a gas tax.

MOTION PICTURES OVER TELEPHONE

Motion pictures transmitted over telephone wires became a reality on April 4. Ten feet of motion picture film showing a close-up of Miss Vilma Banky, famous screen star, smiling, talking with clearly marked movements of the lips, were flashed 1,000 miles from Chicago to New York by the telephotograph process, and five hours later an accurate duplicate of the film was available for showing to a New York audience at the Embassy Theatre.

Continued experimentation with telephoned motion picture film over a period of some years by the engineers of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, together with the cooperation during the last three months of technical experts of the United Artists Corporation, the film company which transmitted the experimental picture, made possible is success.

Miss Banky was caught by a motion picture camera at 10:30 o'clock in the morning in Chicago en route to Los Angeles. By noon the film was being telephotographed to New York City, where it was developed and turned over to the film company within two hours time, a speed five times faster than Colonel Lindbergh could have transmitted the film eastward, and ten times more rapidly than it could have come on the Twentieth Century Limited.

The chief use of telephotograph motion pictures is expected to be in connection with motion picture news reels. The cost of transmission is relatively low when compared with other means, such as special trains and airplanes used when speed is considered essential. Telephone company officials estimate that 30 feet of film of an important news event could be transmitted by telephotograph so as to be available to all parts of the United States for about $1,000.

MORE DIRECT ROUTE TO YELLOWSTONE

Launching of a movement for a more direct motor route between the Yellowstone region and Idaho on the one hand and Northern and Central California on the other, has been announced by J. H. Brunnier, president of the California State Automobile Association and chairman of its highways committee. Highway leaders of Oregon and Idaho and Chambers of Commerce and other organizations in California, are enthusiastically supporting the proposal, Brunnier reported. A series of meetings at points between San Francisco and Boise, Idaho, to crystallize public sentiment in favor of a new route is being arranged by C. C. Cottrell, manager of the Association highway bureaus.

In co-operating with the Idaho sponsors of this plan and in taking the initiative in the movement in this state, the Automobile Association, Brunner said, looks upon the proposal as one that will increase tourist travel to California make Yellowstone more easily accessible for California motorists, and greatly improve commercial relations between California, Idaho and Eastern Oregon.

FITNESS OF TEACHERS TO TRAIN CHILDREN

"Degrees are not idols. They have no qualities which should command worship." So says Will C. Wood, former state superintendent of public instruction and present banking superintendent, in The American Teacher.

"The fitness of our teachers to train children should not be gauged by the letters they can write after their names. These letters may, after all, be dead letters. Degrees are good things to have if they are the outward signs of an inward grace; they aren't worth very much if they merely bear witness that the holder has spent four years in an institution without being found deficient or defective.

"The best way to avoid factory methods in teaching the young is to avoid them in training teachers. The teacher is an artist, not a mechanic. Isn't there too much emphasis placed upon the mechanical and methodical elements? Isn't there too much tendency to make teachers conform to a pattern or mold—to great dependence upon courses, units, semester hours and summer sessions?

"Standardized teaching has about the same relation to real teaching as mechanical piano playing has to Pederwiski's piano artistry. Both tickle the ear drums, but only the artistry of the great player brings a soul-stirring and broadening response. Teaching has a higher purpose than the tickling of ear drums or the storing of facts in the mind like cord-wood in a wood shed."

Mystery and Romance

The Return of Anthony Trent

By WYNDHAM MARTYN

Wyndham Martyn has the happy faculty of being able to write a story that not only has that mysterious touch, but also the proper amount of romance, so that it holds the reader's attention from beginning to end. He is not unknown to the American public, as various of his mystery stories have been published in the past few years. His most famous character is Anthony Trent, who in earlier stories operated outside the law, but is now utilizing his great talents to serve the ends of justice.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Evidencing the large number of labor camps in various California industries, the State Immigration and Housing Commission recently announced that 1,994 of them were inspected by commission representatives during the last. The camps housed 93,863 workers.

Due to what apparently is real competition among the tire companies, the State of California will save approximately $40,000 this year on her tire purchases as a result of favorable contracts awarded by State Purchasing Agent W. G. McMillin.

Mining men of all Northern California counties expressed satisfaction a few days ago over the announcement of Fred Stevenot, director of natural resources, that a branch of the State Mining Bureau would be established in Redding. All business of the mining division for Shasta, Trinity, Siskiyou and Modoc counties will be transacted through the new office and a permanent exhibit of ores will be installed.

California's apostles of accident prevention are somewhat concerned over the upward trend of industrial mishaps in the Golden State. In the last four years these have increased from 500 to 800 a day and are still on the rise. "Consequently," said Will J. French, State director of industrial relations, "it reasonably may be expected that it will not be long until the dread 1,000-a-day mark will be reached, though such a figure is not a credit to a progessive State like the one in which we live."

The State Government owns $31,796,000 worth of land, exclusive of State school lands held for disposition by the Surveyor General, according to an announcement by the Department of Finance. The State owns 76,085 acres outright and leases 6,023 acres in addition. The university of California with 22,337 acres, is the leading land holder among State agencies.

Co-operation in working out a comprehensive, constructive plan for meeting needs of the adult blind was asked by the State government last week of all California agencies interested in the problem. Associations for the adult blind already have been formed in both Northern and Southern California. The State is now conducting a survey to determine the number of California adult blind in need of industrial training and of custodian care.

California's State traffic officer enforcement of the State motor vehicle laws pays its own way—and then some. George F. Moynahan, acting chief inspector of the division, has announced figures showing that delinquent fees collected by these officers and fines for which they were responsible exceeded the amount paid them in salaries during the past year by more than $43,000. The total salary roll for the year was announced by Moynahan as $640,412.86.

What its creators hope will be a "fool proof" airplane is under construction at the California institute of Technology at Pasadena. Dr. Robert A. Millikan, world famed scientist is head of this institution. The plane will embody radically new structural features, according to its designers, A. A. Merrill and Clark C. Millikan, of the institute's department of aeronautics. Its chief departure from the standard type will be a moveable lower wing. "This new plane will fly itself," Merrill said. "The pilot sets the wings for a certain speed and angle and it will never stall, unless he chooses to stall it.

Announcement has been made in Washington by Mayor General Edgar Jadwin, chief of engineers of the United States War Department, that the Sacramento, San Joaquin and Kern Rivers will receive $32,000 of the $1,500,000 made available for a general flood control study of all rivers in the United States. A. M. Barton, general manager of the State reclamation board, was advised by the United States district engineer's office in San Francisco a few days ago that the study on the Sacramento River will consist mostly of showing the feasibility of combining flood control, irrigation, power development and navigation protection into a single project.

Flour purchased by the State for its institution for the new quarter cost $6.55 per barrel as against $6.09 for the last quarter, an increase of 8 per cent. State Purchasing Agent W. G. McMillin, who made this announcement last week, declared the price of flour usually goes up about this season of the year. Rice prices for the new quarter were low, the State contracting for this food at $.0362 a pound as against 4⅛ cents for the last quarter. The price of sugar was practically the same, 5½ cents per pound.

Blindness in babies, which once caused 15 per cent of all blindness, has not once been reported in California during the last three years, it was stated a few days ago to the welfare department of the Community Chest. Free distribution of ampules containing nitrate of silver is responsible for the prevention of baby blindness, according to Dr. Edward F. Glaser, member of the State Board of Health. Instillation of this nitrate of silver solution into babies' eyes at birth is enforced by the State board, he stated.

DISHES CATERERS SERVE

There are many choice foods that one may prepare at home if one has patience and will take pains. These dishes, to those who do not know how they are made, look most complicated and wondrous, as well as full of mystery. It is tremendously gratifying to be able to make some of these dishes which look so difficult.

Chaud-froid of Beef Tongue.—This dish means hot-cold. It first comes hot, then is served cold. Usually a white sauce is the foundation of this dish, though tomato or occasionally other sauce is used. Whatever sauce is used the process of making is the same. Select a smoked tongue and boil until tender. Skin and trim neatly, for the appearance is a large part in any such serving. Slice very thin through, leaving a bit of the last layer to keep it in shape. Press the slices together to keep the original shape. Brush with melted gelatin and place the tongue in the ice chest. Prepare the sauce as usual, adding more butter than usual, then while it is still hot two tablespoonfuls of gelatin to a pint of the sauce, softening the gelatin in three tablespoonfuls of water first. Dissolve over boiling water and stir until the gelatin is thoroughly incorporated. The sauce is now strained, cooled slightly and is ready for use. Cover the entire surface of the tongue with a smooth coating of the sauce; while it is semisoft arrange the decorations. These may be stars cut from pimentos, pepper-stuffed olives, cut into the thinnest of slices, capers, pickled beets, cut with small vegetables cutters, or any desired ornamentation or garnish. When the brown sauce or tomato is used thinly sliced hard-cooked egg or halves of Spanish olives make charming decorations. Chill the tongue and serve it on a parsley-trimmed platter. In serving slice through the previously prepared divisions and each slice will then be masked in the delicious sauce.

Chaud-froid of Eggs.—Halve cooked eggs lengthwise and remove the yolks. Rub them through a sieve and mix with finely minced ham or tongue and pickle, French dressing and a few chopped capers. Season highly and replace in the whites. The halves are then placed together and dipped in the chaud-froid sauce. While this is stiffening, place the decorations.

Black-Eyed Susan Salad.—Peel four navel oranges, separate into sections and carefully remove the membrane from each section. Arrange the sections of fruit on lettuce to form the petals of a flower. For the center of each salad place a small ball of date and nut meats mixed.

Vegetable Dinners.

On a busy day a plate dinner will save time and be perfectly satisfactory to the family. In the best restaurants these service plates serving a whole meal, except salad and dessert are very popular.

At home a large platter may contain the food sufficient for the serving of a small family.

This will make a good dinner: A mound of hot, well-seasoned spinach, whole hard-cooked eggs on the spinach, new carrots seasoned with salt and butter, arranged around the spinach in rays.

In center of the platter mashed buttered summer squash; around this groups of string beans cooked until tender, then butter and onion added. Serve with macaroni and cheese.

In cooking vegetables, especially the green and succulent ones, let them stand in cold water for a few minutes, then plunge at once into boiling water; cook uncovered and remove as soon as tender, using the liquor when possible for a sauce to serve with the vegetable, as much of the natural content is left in the liquor as well as the valuable vitamines.

Rice cooked and molded in small cups after seasoning well makes not only an addition to the food value but the attractiveness of the dish is increased.

Instead of serving vegetables always in the same way, try molding them in loaves, croquettes and timbales. Children who will refuse spinach, peas or vegetables which are especially good for them, will often try them if served in some unusual way.

Stuffed Lettuce.—Use the large outside leaves of lettuce which are ordinarily too coarse or tough to serve uncooked. In each leaf place a spoonful of stuffing, tie up with a string and steam forty or fifty minutes. Remove the string and serve with tomato sauce. The stuffing may be anything one has at hand—minced ham, a bit of onion fried in butter, a few bread crumbs, and such seasoning as one desires.

LOVING THE WORLD

"I am a friendly soul," said Mrs. Baltimore Oriole. "And I am grateful to the children.

"They left gay-colored bits of yarn and splendid pieces of string for me.

"Of course I took them. I showed them how grateful I was by using it all right away.

"That is one of the reasons we have so nice a nest. It is the best kind, high up in the branches.

"It hangs down, rather wide at the top, a little pointed at the bottom, which makes it look like a pouch.

"It won't let the rain in, and the wind can't blow it off, for it is too safely fastened to the branch with horsehair.

"It is the right kind of a nest for a handsome mate such as you with your gorgeous colorings.

"Your head and throat are such a beautiful shiny black color and your wings match, but look so extra fine with their touches of white.

"As for the rest of you—all orange with flame coloring too, well it's too beautiful for words.

"I'm only a poor yellow and brown oriole mate, but a good nest builder."

"Ah," said Mr. Baltimore Oriole, "There are other cousin orioles who have different homes; there are our near-by cousins, the orchard orioles, who also have beautiful homes, but not of the same exquisite shape as our home is.

"High Up in the Branches."

"But no Mrs. Oriole was ever waited for so impatiently as I waited for thee, my love."

Mrs. Baltimore Oriole smoothed her feathers.

"Yes, I remember," she said coyly. "I remember very well how you kept asking me and asking me to be your mate. My, what a noise you did make!

"People thought you were a great old scold and fuss.

"You kept asking the same question over and over again, and whistling and singing with your voice getting high and shriller all the time."

"But I had to know the answer to my question," said Mr. Baltimore Oriole, "and it was the only question I had to ask.

"I was waiting for you for some time, Mrs. Baltimore Oriole. I came up when the first trees were bursting into blossom. I love the color and the glory of the springtime.

"I was here waiting for you to come up, but you were well worth waiting for."

"And you've been a good mate and a helpful mate and a good father.

"It makes me love the whole world as I am so happy."

"I love the whole world, too," said the beautiful Mr. Baltimore Oriole.

Effective Rebuttal

Two opposing lawyers tried a case in Franklin the other day. One, a bald-headed man, repeatedly referred to the other as "my distinguished gray-haired friend."

After tiring of the repeated epithet, which was evidently a joke, the other counsel, who possessed an abundance of gray hair, decided to get even. He arose and said: "The gentleman on the other side keeps referring to my gray hair. I learned just the other day that the hair grows in two directions. It grows outward and downward. Unusually strong roots grow till they touch the gray matter in the head, if there is any, and the hair turns gray. On the other hand, if there isn't any, the hair comes out."—Indianapolis News.

Moon Makes Clocks Vary

After an exhaustive study of the running of clocks over long periods, Dr. Robert R. Morgan of the Naval observatory, Washington, has reached the surprising conclusion that they go more slowly when the moon is in the western part of the sky. The difference, however, can be detected only by the most delicate measuring instruments. He reports in Popular Science Monthly that when the moon is in the west, one-half of the day is five-thousandths of a second longer than the other.

THE YEARLY SLAUGHTER

In spite of warnings and pleadings by the press and various safety organizations, the unending slaughter of human beings in highway accidents show no indication of being diminished.

Figures compiled by the American Road Builders' Association, made public last week, show that during the year 1927 in the United States there were 26,818 killed and 798,700 seriously injured on the streets and highways of the country.

The number killed was greater than that enrolled in the entire regular army of the United States in 1927. Suppose that during that year every officer and soldier had been killed. The tragedy would have shocked the nation. Yet little attention is paid to an even greater tragedy in 1927. Suppose that every man, woman and child in the city of Boston were either killed or seriously injured. It would be a less disaster, in the loss of life and injuries, than befell the country as a whole from highway accidents alone last year, and, so far as can be judged, less than will occur this year and each year in the future.

While many accidents are seemingly unavoidable, the great majority of them are due to plain carelessness or foolhardiness. And it seems impossible to keep a fool away from a steering wheel.

From the way they sound to us, some of the voices we hear over the radio must emanate from throats not soothed by toasted cigarettes.

Anyway, the new styles have discouraged the habit of referring to the sweet young things as "skirts."

If we get that big navy, we should need not only a Chief of Operations, but a Chief of Explanations as well.

WHY CALL IT SPORT?

An interesting phenomenon in American life, which seems hard to account for when on reflects upon it, is the amazing seriousness with which we take our so-called sports. This seriousness is reflected in the sporting sections of the daily newspapers, which play up the activities of athletes to an extent bordering on the ridiculous.

In professional sporting events, and in many of the amateur varieties, too often every element is present except that of true sportsmanship. Often the only object sought is to win by fair means or foul.

Originated as friendly games for the exercise and recreation they afforded, baseball, football and other popular pastimes have in many cases degenerated into grim struggles for notoriety and gate receipts.

A recent writer, and a sports writer at that, has deplored the methods whereby some college football teams have been strengthened through fake enrollments, and he relates that one Eastern university spent $250,000 in three months on a losing team.

Fortunately, in most of the smaller communities and in the lesser schools there is still to be found wholesome athletic activity, in which friendly rivalry and real sportsmanship are the rule. But the events which draw the big crowds and fill the sport pages are too often marked with bitterness and frequently long-standing feuds.

So long as the public demands this sort of thing it will no doubt be supplied. But why call it sport?

SPARE THE BIRDS

Although some varietise of birds are considered a great nuisance by farmers and others, it is doubtful that any of these feathered tribes are more destructive than useful. Birds are the natural enemies of insects, and insects are the greatest enemies of mankind. Scientists have declared that without continued research and the employment of improved means of combatting insect pests they would overrun the world and destroy all other life, including man.

The rapidity with which certain insects multiply is beyond the imagination. For example, a pair of pucerons, a species of flea, will in a year produce more than 441 quadrillion young. One small bird, such as a tomtit, will destroy about 1,500 of these in a day. A partridge will eat 30,000 white grubs in a year. Various birds have their favorite insects upon which they prey, but all eat practically any insect which crosses their path.

With this ever present menace of insects to combat, we can hardly have too many birds. Not only out of humane sentiment, but as an actual protection to civilization, the birds should be spared.

BASEBALL IN JAPAN

An interesting account of the enthusiasm for baseball which now exists in Japan is told by Harry Kingman, who has served as coach for Oriental teams, in a recent article in the magazine Asia.

Since its introduction into the Flowery Kingdom about thirty-six years ago, by some Japanese engineers who had learned the game while studying in the United States, baseball has gained great popularity, not only in the cities, but in the villages as well.

Keio University was among the first schools to take up the sport, after a group of students had translated a Spalding rule book into Japanese. The game's greatest impetus resulted from the enthusiasm of Professor Isa Abe of Waseda University, who is called "the father of Japanese baseball." Under his leadership, teams from the university have made several tours of the United States.

Even the Christian missionaries in Japan cross bats with monks of the Buddhist monasteries. In one such game it is said in the last half of the ninth inning, with the score 1 to 1, "His Holiness, the Abbot of the monastery, playing shortstop, booted a hot grounder and allowed the winning run of the missionaries to trickle across the plate."

LESS LABOR FOR WOMEN

In a recent bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture a striking illustration of benefits of labor saving machinery in the home was given. Among the devices particularly recommended by the department is the power washing machine, which is doing much to afford women relief from the drudgery which has heretofore fallen to their lot.

By inducing an Ohio woman to wear a pedometer, a device which registers the number of steps taken and thus the number of miles walked, it was found that with an electric washer and iron, and running water in the home, she performed the weekly washing and ironing with only four and a half miles of walking. Without this equipment she would have walked nearly twelve miles, to say nothing of the strain on back and arms.

Innumerable other items of labor-saving equipment for the home are available, whereby the wearisome tasks of housewives are lightened, with a consquent conservation of health and beauty. No man who really loves his wife will fail to prvide her with all the labor-saving equipment of this kind which she may need and which he can reasonably afford.

A RANK INJUSTICE

An example of the stubbornness of government bureaucrats is seen in the persistence of with which the Post Office Department clings to its practice of competing with local printers in the sale of printed envelopes at less than cost.

There is no more justification for this practice than there would be for selling clothing, groceries, or any other commodity at less than cost, and making up the deficit by taxation.

AMERICAN LEGION JOINS IN FOREST COSERVATION WEEK

Throughout California during the coming week, World war veterans, acting through their American Legion Posts, will join in the tree planting and conservation movement to be a feature of American Forest Week, State Commandar Phil Dodson of the Legion announces.

John R. White, superintendent of Sequoia National Park, is chairman of the Legion's forest conservation committee and will have direct charge of the activities of the various Posts which will act in conjunction with local bodies in their conservation efforts. Commander Dodson and Superintendent White have worked out a plan for the planting of 50,000 trees in this state during the remaining weeks of the year.

The federal authorities are co-operating with the American Legion and other agencies sponsoring American Forest Week, April 22-28.

T. H. Alexander, brilliant Southern columnist, some time ago facetiously suggested that all lawyers ought to be hanged. In reply to many protests, he apologized, saying: "They should have known that I did not mean it. They should have known that not more than three-fourths of the lawyers should be hung."

High-pressure salesmen of worthless stocks will have a little harder sledding in Ontario as a result of a new "blue-sky" law just passed by the legislature. In spite of all warnings, many millions of dollars are filched from the public through stock swindlers. The new law provides, among other things, that all stock brokers and salesmen must be registered.

"The St. Francis Dam has broken! Spread the alarm!"

It was the voice of a telephone operator—another—and another.

Though in imminent danger themselves, as the black wall of water loosed its violence on a sleeping countryside, these young women in towns of the stricken area, promptly and coolly passed this midnight call of warning—warning of impending doom. Constables, town officials and others in the path of danger were notified by telephone. Instantly, with shrieking sirens and clanging bells the alarm was spread—and hundreds of lives were saved.

The world hears little of the "spirit of service" until times of emergency, but behind the scenes in the telephone world this spirit is always present. Telephone users confidently rely upon the devotion to duty of the men and women who make this service possible.

Idly Drawn Scrawls Reveal State of Mind

Weird and ugly faces absent-mindedly scribbled on paper indicate a troubled state of mind, points out Louise Rice, a teacher of graphology, in an article in Liberty Magazine.

"Mental conditions which are going wrong," writes Miss Rice, "nearly always result in the making of weird and ugly 'faces,' death's-heads, yawning mouths with prodigious teeth, and other unpleasant formations which show that the hand fears that which is going on in the dark recesses of the mind.

"The hand knows much about a man's mental and physical states, which he does not," the writer explains. "Confusion in scribblings, when they have usually been well defined and when there is no mental troubles felt, shows nervous conditions which are apt to break out, sometimes long after the information has been conveyed by this symbolism."

"Lady Sylvia St. Croix? That is—I am—that is to say—may I present myself?—you are—who are you?"

She stared at him in what seemed undisguised astonishment and drew away her hand. But she stepped out of the crowd and stood aside with him on the dock.

"You have been sent to fetch me? You are, I suppose," she said, scanning his recherche attire, "my cousin's groom?"

The voice, the accent, were, to be sure, as utterly different from Meely's as were the tone and manner of the girl—a self-possessed, reserved manner that made St. Croix her abject slave—in spite of her unflattering and stupid mistake in taking him for a groom—heavens!

"I am your Cousin St. Croix, Lady Sylvia," he stammeringly explained.

"Oh?" with a surprised lift of her fine brows. "How do you do?" She offered her gloved hand and as he took it it flashed upon him that he would know Meely Schwenckton's hands among a thousand—he would know the very touch of them—he had always thought her hands so unusual for a working girl. When this girl drew off her gloves— But how utterly absurd!—though the resemblance was truly amazing—

An experienced traveler, St. Croix knew how to expedite the tedious customs business and in a very short time he was helping Lady Sylvia into a taxicab.

Seated at her side in the cab, listening with strained attention to the tones of her voice, stealing glances at her exquisite profile, noting the movements of her gloved hands (if only she'd take off her gloves), St. Croix felt every minute more bewildered, more uncertain. There was something in the very atmosphere of her presence that made him feel as if he were sitting beside Meely—yet the incongruity of identifying in any way this elegant creature with Meely Schwenckton—her civilized speech with Meely's Pennsylvania Dutch dialect, her grace with Meely's vulgar clumsiness, her sparkling countenance with Meely's heavy dullness, the simplicity of her coiffure with Meely's elaborate pompadour—

The wild absurdity of his predicament in not being sure made him feel, as he told himself, "woozy!"

All at once he recalled that Meely had a tiny brown mole under the lobe of her ear—he had kissed it often. Her hands and that mole! If he could only lift the lobes of Lady Sylvia's ears and have a look! But suppose he found the mole there—what would it mean and what would he do about it? Surely this was the weirdest experience that had ever fallen to the lot of a man!

"You have changed so much since you were a child, Cousin Sylvia! I'd never have recognized you." He put out a feeler.

"No, of course you wouldn't. When you last saw me, I was a homely little tow-headed, bow-legged, pigeon-toed, freckle-faced kid!"

The words had a vaguely familiar sound to St. Croix. He seemed to hear again the unaccountable indignation with which Meely Schwenckton, that day in the woods on the hill, had repeated, "Bow-legged!" His head swam and he felt almost ill.

Suddenly he turned in his seat and looked straight into her eyes with a very definite and frank suspicion. "This," he inquired with what he felt to be subtle cunning, his eyes probing hers like gimlets, "was of course your first crossing?"

"Well, I've crossed the Channel so often that crossing the Atlantic didn't seem anything! Why, I'd hardly know I was on a boat at all, crossing the Atlantic. Why, crossing the Atlantic—"

She was evading a direct answer to his question!—and covering the fact by volubly chattering.

Seated opposite each other, presently, in the dining car, he waited in strained suspense for the critical moment when their waiter would bring their order and Lady Sylvia would be obliged to remove her gloves; and at the same time he was wondering how he could contrive to have a look behind her ears for that tiny mole; for that mole could have been no part of a make-up; he knew it too intimately not to be quite sure that it did't come off!

"So," she suddenly remarked, resting her folded arms on the table and bending forward confidentially, "your brother, Marvin, won't have me, will he?"

St. Croix made an effort to conceal his surprise and embarrassment at this unexpected broadside. He felt it lacked delicacy.

"I'm afraid when he sees you, he'll change his mind!"

"'Afraid'?"

"I needn't tell you why—you know!"

"Tell me," she smilingly invited, "what's he like?"

"A queer bird! Seems to hate his comforts! Wants to live like a hod-carrier or a street-cleaner or a—Why, he's gone and taken a teaching job, if you'll believe me, for a petty little salary that wouldn't keep me in gasoline! Insists on living simply and working for his living."

The waiter's arrival with their food brought him up short.

As Lady Sylvia drew off her gloves, he fairly held his breath. But to his chagrin, that test proved no more conclusive than anything else about her, for her hands were now, to his distaste, so covered with rings and so perfectly manicured (Meely's nails had never been so pink and polished) that while these lovely hands certainly did somewhat resemble Meely's, he felt, as about everything else concerning his cousin, that he could not feel sure.

"I wear all these rings," she explained apologetically, "when I travel because I think it's the safest way to carry them."

Well, since the hand-test failed, he was all the more determined to find that mole!—if it were there to be found.

A very vague attention he gave to his dinner, as, with every least movement of her head, he tried to see under and around and through her ear-lobes!

"Lady Sylvia," he said abruptly, with a sudden reckless daring, "I want to take you to see an acquaintance of mine who looks so remarkably like you that it's uncanny!"

"Lady Sylvia St. Croix? That Is—I Am—That Is to Say—May I Present Myself?—You Are—Who Are You?"

"You mean, don't you, that you'll bring her to see me?"

"No. Couldn't. She's a farmer's daughter living about five miles from us. An ignorant, vulgar—"

He stopped short, his face flushing red, feeling, insanely, as though he were insulting Meely Schwenckton to her face! "A very nice country girl," he hastily amended his remark, "but not a person one would ask to call on you!"

"But why?"

"Oh, not in our class."

"Then you have 'classes' in America?"

"You know we do! Ever hear of our Colonial Dames or D. A. R.'s?"

"I've heard of your G. A. R.'s to my sorrow! But these C. D.'s and D. A. R.'s—they seem to be an expression of the national yearning for a titled order; for all those silly social encumbrances which England, so much more advanced in democracy, is trying to slough off. So this farmer's daughter is an ignorant, vulgar girl who is 'uncannily' like me? Thanks!"

"I'll take you to see for yourself how much you look alike. I want to see you two together! Why, you're as alike as twins—except that you are wholly unlike—I mean your features are alike; that's all."

"It will be interesting to see her—like seeing oneself on the screen! I'll know, for once, what I do look like. A portrait painter once told me my type was unusual—"

She chattered on, but he scarcely heard her, so intent he was in trying to penetrate the veil of her ear-lobes—when suddenly she stopped short, laid down her knife and fork and looked at him in puzzled astonishment.

"Why," she inquired breathlessly, her brows puckered in bewilderment, "are you looking at me so strangely?"

"I'll tell you," he smiled frankly. "You look so like that farm girl that the very shape of your ears is like hers!—so that I should not be at all surprised to find you had even the same little brown mole under the lobe of your ear that she has!"

"Well!" she exclaimed, "how extraordinarily intimate you must have been with her to have learned all about her little brown mole under her ear-lobe! This is interesting, not to say exciting! Own up—how did you come to know about this mole?"

"Do you have one, too?"

"What 'satiable curiosity'! See for yourself." She lifted the lobes of her ears—and he looked.

There was no mole there.

But his relief was not greater than his astonishment and confusion that two people could look so alike without being related. However, he could delight in her, now, without fear and dread—and be proud of her distinction and even enjoy this weird resemblance to the girl for whom his senses hungered.

"Now appease my 'satiable curiosity'!" she insisted. "How—did—you—discover—that farm girl's little mole?"

"Well, you'll find it in your heart to forgive me, I know, that her beauty, so very much like yours, proved so irresistible that—sometimes—I kissed her when I got a good chance.

"And it was while engaged in kissing her that you discovered the little mole?"

"You see if she hadn't been beautiful, like you, I shouldn't have wanted to kiss her—being a bit fastidious in my taste."

"Your fastidious taste," said Lady Sylvia reflectively, "didn't find her too vulgar to be kissed, though she's too vulgar to be asked to call on me?" She shook her head hopelessly. "It's too much for my logic. I don't get it. Kissing doesn't seem to me less intimate than calling! But one thing I do get—I am to play the role of the rival of this 'ignorant, vulgar farm girl' in your affections! It isn't a role that appeals to me."

"I'll show her to you and you'll understand!"

"But how will she like that—your bringing me to inspect her? She might not like it at all! I shouldn't think she'd like it! She might fall upon me and scratch me!"

"But, my dear cousin, you don't suppose that a girl of that class takes the caresses of men of our class seriously?"

"You're sure that girl didn't take you seriously?"

"She wouldn't presume to!" he answered, a faint tinge of uneasiness in his voice.

"I've never been able to understand," she said almost plaintively, "how it is that while men of the most civilized background will seek the most intimate relations with low girls, it would be worse than death to women of the same background to be so much as touched by a common, coarse man. Why is that, St. Croix?"

St. Croix looked rather shocked, as though he felt her choice of a theme to be in very poor taste, to say the least.

"Well, you know," he answered lightly, "when the gods made man and woman they used a great deal less clay and much more divine fire for the woman than for the man; so that woman is of course less earthly, finer, more celestial! Will you," he asked as they now rose to leave the diner, "come to the smoking corridor for a cigarette?"

She thought she would not; but when he had taken her back to their chairs, she urged him to go for a smoke without her. That he refused to do; he had no desire to tear himself from the delectable sight of her for even the few minutes it took to smoke a cigarette. But when she insisted that he must go so that she could take a little nap, as she was "awfully sleepy," he reluctantly yielded.

His reflections as he smoked were increasingly reassuring. The agitating sense of the girl's dual personality was somewhat dulled by the soothing effect of several cigarettes. Even the recollection of certain vague doubts he had always felt about Meely, certain inexplicable things like her fine hands, her being able to get away so often from the hard work of the farm, the touch of foreignness in her speech, her very stupidities that sometimes had seemed more like keen thrusts at him—none of these things were convincing enough to counteract the evidence of the mole. Meely had a mole and Lady Sylvia had none.

He had to go through several day coaches to reach his parlor car, and it was when he was hurrying down the aisle of the last of these, scarcely seeing anyone as he progressed, for the backs of the passengers were toward him, that suddenly the back of a head just a few feet ahead of them brought him to a petrified standstill—froze his very blood—and made his heart sink like lead; for there, under his very eyes, so close that he could have put out his hand and touched her, sat Meely Schwenckton—her heavy, fair hair arranged in the vulgarly exaggerated pompadour she always affected; wearing a grotesque flowered blouse that looked like a kimono or a dressing-sack tucked into her skirt (which no doubt it was!) no rings on her hands; sitting in the slovenly, slouching way that had so often offended his sense of "decency."

The seat behind her was empty. Noiselessly he slipped into it. Her head was bowed over a copy of Snappy Stories; curly tendrils of hair on her white neck—

The mole! Was it there? A mad hope seized him that even yet he might find Lady Sylvia and Meely to be two different people. He bent his head and looked. And there, under her left ear, was the little brown mole!

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Had Odd Accomplishment

Earl Russell has this anecdote in his book, "My Life and Reminiscenses":

"My grandmother, Lady John Russell, was a great favorite with Queen Victoria throughout her life. Not alone, of course, because she had the peculiar and unusual capacity of wagging her ears like a dog. But this accomplishment intrigued the queen and she suddenly called on Lady John to show it off to an ambassador. My grandmother was so taken back that she lost for a long time the power to move either ear, and only ultimately regained her power to move one, which she occasionally did for my edification."

PHILLIPSBURG IS FINALLY LOCATED

Town Where Jess Haines Lives Near Dayton, Ohio.

Not many miles from Dayton, Ohio, is the little town of Phillipsburg. It has about 600 inhabitants and boasts one.

In fact, there were more than a hundred million residents of America who never knew there was such a town as Phillipsburg until the St. Louis Cardinals broke into the world series of 1926, writes Henry P. Edwards in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

But now, when a motorist gets into trouble anywhere near Phillipsburg and stops to ask a farmer where the nearest garage is, he will get the following reply:

"See yon big tree? Reckon you do Well, the road forks there. You take the road to the right and keep going until you reach a big red barn. Turn to the left then and that will take you right by Jess Haines' garage.

"Reckon you heard of Jess Haines He's the man who beat Babe Ruth and those other smart city slickers from New York in the world series a year ago last October. Jess will fix you up all right and if you need a new car he'll sell you an automobile."

They all are Haines boosters down Phillipsburg way. Yes, Jess runs a garage and has an automobile agency. Some one else looks after it in the summer time when Jess is knuckle-balling his way to victories in the National league, but Jess is on the job in the winter. He confesses, however, he is only a white shirt mechanic.

"If a guy has to have a tire changed, I guess I can do it for him but when it comes to diagonising what's wrong with the innerds of a car I am not guilty," admits the big pitcher.

"Being a boss, however, has its advantages," Jess continues. "Fishing and hunting are my hobbies and if Jess Haines wants to chase rabbits or quail or take his fish rod and go up above Dayton, no one is going to tell him he has got to hang around and tend shop."

The garage, hunting and fishing are about Jess' only occupations during the winter. Never a golf fiend, he cares not for cards and he never has danced. He likes good action movies but how in blazes is he going to indulge his desire in a town of only 600 inhabitants? So when he is all dressed up, he has no place to go.

Critics Again Favor Pirates as Winners

The National league 1928 pennant has been awarded by many critics to the Pittsburgh Pirates, who won it in 1927. It is the almost unanimous belief of the critics that addition of Sparky Adams to the Pirates has made them invincible. The funny part of all this is that some of these now so sure of Pirate success were equally sure that if Kiki Cuyler had been played in the 1927 World series the Pirates might have won it. Yet they don't seem to think acquisition of Cuyler by the Chicago Cubs will put that team in the pennant race.

Coach Knute Rockne to Watch Olympic Games

Knute Rockne, Notre Dame football coach, has signed a contract chartering a boat from the Cunard S. S. line to head a tour to the 1928 Olympic games at Amsterdam.

To devote himself to the continental tour Rockne will give up all his summer coaching schools this year. The revenue from this source in past summers has netted him an average of $15,000 each summer.

While the Rockne tour will be primarily to the Olympic games, six other countries will be visited. Present plans call for visits to England, Holland, France, Germany, Switzerland, Italy and Belgium.

The trip will require six weeks.

BIG GAME ANIMALS IN NATIONAL FOREST

There are more than 250,000 big game animals in the eighteen national forests of California, according to the 1927 census of wild life taken by rangers of the U. S. Forest Service and just released by S. B. Snow, chief of the California district.

The census shows that there are 121,700 black tail deer, 117,000 mule deer, 10,300 black and brown bear, 680 mountain sheep, and 125 elk in the Federal forests of the state.

In 1927 there were 56,292 hunters who took advantage of the hunting grounds of the national forests, which are fast becoming the last refuge of the California big game. The census shows that 11,552 deer were killed within the government forests last year, or 2,271 less than the previous year, although the increase in the number of hunters over 1926 was 7,160.

"Sportsmen are welcome to hunt and fish in the national forests," said District Forester Show, "the only restrictions being their willingness to abide by the state fish and game laws and their observance of the regulations of the forest service concerning care with fire. All forest officers are deputy fish and game wardens and take a great interest in the welfare of the game. According to our reports the new tag system for deer is a success and should be continued. The rangers are also in favor of a one buck bag limit in all game districts, because of the increasing number of hunters and the gradual encroachment of civilization which is restricting the range of game animals.

"In alloting range for domestic stock within the national forests the forest service makes provision for the grazing of game animals, and in addition has set aside a total of 19,800 acres in three reserved areas for the exclusive grazing of game. There are twenty-five state and four federal game refuges covering 1,794,163 acres in the national forests of California."

The forest service census further shows that more than twice the number of deer are killed by predatory animals as by man, and more vigorous action by the state and other agencies is recommended to reduce this needless loss. The number of bear have greatly decreased during the past year and many are reported killed during the summer season when the fur is of no value. This condition exists in faur national forests, where the removal of the closed season on bear has resulted in much unwarranted killing.

The census shows that quail are increasing, but that there is a general decrease in grouse, ducks and particularly geese.

During 1927 the forest service assisted in the distribution and planting of 3,585,000 fish fry of different species in the streams and lakes of the national forests. In many localities it has been found that the increasing number of fishermen necessitates the planting of more fry if the streams are to be kept stocked.

PERFECT TEETH ARE SCARCE, U. C. FINDS

Out of 3,000 students examined at the University of California Infirmary during the past year, only ten have teeth that might be classified as perfect, according to a survey just completed by Dr. J. F. Cathcart, dental surgeon and volunteer research worker, under the direction of Dr. F. H. Orton, professor of crown and bridge work prosthesis in the College of Dentistry.

At the opening of the fall semester in 1927 and the spring semester of 1928, during routine examinations of all entering students, freshman and graduate both, and during other examinations given by the military and physical education departments, Dr. Catchcart has kept close watch for perfect teeth. From this preliminary survey he selected fifty cases in which the teeth were in perfect condition as far as cavities and general development were concerned. Plaster casts of these were taken and then were studied for perfect bite, or occlusion, and for general placement in the jaw. Of these fifty, only ten proved to be good in all respects.

"Dad, give me a dime."

"Son, don't you think you are getting too big to be forever begging for dimes?"

"I guess you're right, Dad. Gimme a dollar, willya?"

Wife to hubby who has stumbled over a chair in the dark trying to get to bed after a large evening:

"Is that you, John?"

"Yesh, m'dear; if 'taint I'm going to 'ply for a divorshe."

In asking the good Lord to give you luck enough to hold your job, always spell it with a "p."

Today is the day, but that does not mean you should forget the lessons learned yesterday, and not plan for the coming of tomorrow.

When you hear a man boast, "I say just what I think," just put it down that he doesn't think.

If you are thinking of building, see H. H.

You must have sand if you expect to make the grade.

The fellow who works by the clock never has the price of a watch.

"Know anything about cars?"

"Been mixed up with 'em a bit."

"Mechanic?"

"No, pedestrian."

Customer: "Chicken croquettes, please."

Waiter (one time baseball umpire): "Fowl ball!!!"

Teacher: "Why is it necessary for us to chew our food?"

Johnny: "Because we have no gizzard."
